KEITH RECALLED BY BANKERS WIFE S RANTOUL WITNESS

Five men, three of them prominent bankers, and another a former State senator, were examined today by the Grand Jury which is investigating the charges of William J. Keith, Boston, that he was in his own indictment by the Federal Grand Jury, he received, read, and made use of the minutes of the Grand Jury proceedings which indicted George W. Coleman for working the National City Bank of Cambridge.

In every case statements alleged to have been made by "Big Bill" in his confession were absolutely denied by the witnesses, and the examinations were brief.

Banker of 1904, formerly cashier of the wrecked bank, testified that he never knew Keith at any time, besides Ernest Rantoul, treasurer of the National City Bank.

But One Transaction. Former Senator James H. Doyle told of but one transaction he had with Keith, and that one indirectly. He had turned over from Mrs. Keith, $50,000 in cash, as a gift for the United H. C. Co., and James P. O'Connell, a carriage man at the hotel where Doyle had held his place on any wages of "Big Bill" matter.

"Mummy Sleeve" the Latest; Helen Taft Sets the Fashions

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—The "mummy sleeve" made its appearance today in Washington society, due to the chaperonage of Mrs. Squier Cady, who introduced it at a recent White House reception. The "mummy sleeve" is guaranteed to give its wearer a varied assortment of discomfort.

In the next place the sleeve does not permit of raising the arm at all. The sleeves on the gown Mrs. Taft wore to the reception, a beautiful gown of pink and silver brocade, were so wrapped around her arms that it was with difficulty she was able to shake hands.

Mrs. Helen Taft, who is usually so conservative in her dressing, has adopted the "mummy sleeve."

Tells of Meeting Booth on Way to Shoot Lincoln Down

DANVILLE, Pa., Feb. 12.—Benjamin R. Smithers, a Civil War veteran, today described to his friends his last meeting with J. Edgar Booth in the basement of Ford's Theatre, a few minutes before Booth leaped upon the stage and shot President Lincoln.

Smithers, who has made his home in Danville for the past thirty years, served in Company C, Light Artillery, and at the time was stationed at Camp Barry, about half a mile from Washington. With others of the same command Smithers was in the restaurant on the evening of April 14, 1865, when Booth made his appearance.

Booth swept the room with his eye and, stepping up to the bar, said: "Give the boys a drink."

Without taking one himself or waiting for his change, he stepped to the rear of the room and disappeared through the door which led to the theatre above. A few minutes later the scene was dashed around that Lincoln had been shot by Booth. These in the restaurant then realized that Booth had passed through the restaurant for the purpose of gaining entrance to the theatre at a point that would be the better suited to reach the President's box unobserved.

Your Health depends upon Your Bowels

DON'T imagine that a clogged bowel is just an intestinal condition. Nothing comes so close to personal action as the working of the human machinery, but every organ must work in harmony. One single slip puts the whole system out of order. Constipation may only be one of the visible signs of disease.

To be on the safe side, take a remedy which not only clears out the bowels in a gentle and harmless way, but which also acts on your liver, stomach, kidneys and the entire nervous system in the right way. Then you are safe, safe and well.

BOSTON JOINS IN OBSERVING
LINCOLN DAY

Interest nationally centres in the services at the burial place of the martyred President in Springfield, Ill., where prominent men will gather and speakers will eulogize to commemorate the life and character of Lincoln. "Prominent speakers will include Sen. Daniel Webster, and the proclamation of Governor Fox will be read."

The women's political organizations played a leading role in the planning. Mrs. William's Relief Corps conducts a sale in the afternoon. "If the weather is favorable, there will be a special service in the auditorium," Attorney Albert K. Pillsbury said. "The program will be broadcast on 'Lincoln the Emancipator,' a special Lincoln service for the deaf-mutes of Boston, and a service for the blind of the Presbyterian Church, Warren Avenue and West Brookline street. There will be a special service for the blind of the Methodist Church, South Street, and the Robert Gould Shaw house."

A number of local organizations have been invited to participate in the Middlesex County Fair, which will have a Lincoln dinner at the Fairgrounds, Brookline, on Monday night. The Boston Globe has announced that the Boston Herald will have a banquet tonight at the Hotel Marlborough.

TAX POSTMASTER THREE PER CENT. FOR RAPE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—Letters signed by Gordon H. Campbell, treasurer of the Republican State Committee of Maine, Arkansas, demanding a contribution of thirty-nine dollars for the Republican campaign fund of 1912, were produced at the investigation by the Senate committee into the same which were raised, sent between the assembling convention and the presidential election last year, by Postmaster Thomas J. Carr, who alleged that he was compelled to refuse from his position because of his refusal to contribute to the fund.

Carr, who was one of the first witnesses to be examined, testified that the $39 demanded was a part of his salary, and that after he had written to Postmaster General Hildreth asking whether he would lose his position if he failed to comply, he received no answer until a letter from the first assistant postmaster-general demanded his resignation on grounds that he was incompetent, failed to execute his duties properly, discharged employees without cause, and refused to employ inspectors before the basis of these charges.

BOYFON APPEALS TO PASTORS' COUNCIL IN CHURCH FIGHT

A young man in the Park and Downside Union Congregational Church of Wollaston was today again one of the Congregational churches through out the South. South Wollaston, a native of a native mission to be held at Plummer Hall, No. 14 Beacon street, on Tuesday, February 25, to consider the case of Chester A. Boynton, who has been expelled from membership in the Wollaston congregation. Mr. Boynton will lay his case before pastors and delegates from churches in the district and will ask them to advise him what to do.

Mr. Boynton is suing the Rev. William H. Ayers, pastor of the Park and Downside Church, for $25,000 for the alleged alienation of the affection of his wife, Mrs. Elsie Wollaston Boynton. Mr. Boynton recently asked the church for a letter of disavowal, which the church refused. Mr. Boynton was dropped from the church membership.

A VALUABLE SUGGESTION

IMPORTANT TO EVERYONE

It is now conceded by physicians that the kidneys should have more attention than they control the other organs to a remarkable degree and do a tremendous amount of work in removing the poisons and waste matter from the system by filtering the blood.

During the Winter months especially when we live an indoor life, the kidneys should receive some assistance when needed, as we take less exercise, drink less water and often eat more rich, heavy food, thereby forcing the kidneys to do more work than nature intended. Evidence of kidney trouble, such as lame back, inability to hold urine, smarting or burning, frequent urination, a feeling of heaviness, indigestion, a feeling of weakness, irregular heart action, warns you that your kidneys require help immediately to avoid more serious trouble.

Herbal medicine containing no minerals or opiates has the most healing influence. An ideal herb compound that has had most remarkable success as a kidney and bladder remedy is Dr. Kinner's Swamp Root.

You may receive a sample bottle of Swamp Root by mail, simply from Address Dr. Kinner & Co., Brighton, N. Y., and mention the Boston Daily American.

MYSTERY STILL HIDES DENNETT IN TORRE ISSUE

"The doctrine," the "enunciations" of the "mystical center," "the impurities" of "immortality" except for "strategic purposes," and "a spiritual questing between" "mystical ideas," are some of the phrases contained in an unusual statement made by Harry Bennett and read at the Cambridge Court where his wife, Mary Bennett, has just been granted a divorce on the ground of desertion.

The statement of Bennett adds some more to the library of "human documents," as some of such highly personal nature are sometimes called.

The next step will be the reference to the Boston Superior Court, where Bennett is the custody of the two children, Carlotta, twelve, and Devon, seven. The next secret of the trouble between the Denetts may be revealed then. Bennett says he has never been told in court.

Harry Bennett, Harvard graduate, former Boston architect, now living in Allston, N. H., put up in 1906 on the marriage grounds when Mrs. Bennett sued for custody of her children in 1906.

At that time Bennett publicly admitted his love for Margaret Everett Chase, wife of Dr. H. Lincoln Chase, agent of the Brookline House of Health.

He is defended by Dr. Chase.

He defended his action as that of a pure mind which had found its "soul mate."

The chase which Mrs. Chase has self-called Bennett's love for Mrs. Chase is a beautiful example of that affection which comes from the mind.

Now Mrs. Bennett has just been granted her divorce after a hearing at which Bennett was not present in person, but at which, by statement, of his wife, she was present.

Mrs. Bennett secured divorce for desertion, but Bennett says it is "moral insanity" on the part of his wife.

But, on top of that, Bennett declares that his wife's "moral insanity" is "moral insanity" on the part of his wife.

The statement makes no direct allusion to his "other woman."

Real Issue Secret, He Says.

On the real issue between him and his wife, Bennett then alludes to in the following vague manner:

Of the matter that precipitated the profound mental and moral struggle I need not speak here. It was because I was a man of the highest moral and intellectual standards, and I was not willing to be regarded as a man of the lowest moral and intellectual standards.

My wife, Mrs. Bennett, is a woman of the highest moral and intellectual standards, and I was not willing to be regarded as a man of the lowest moral and intellectual standards.

SUFFRAGETTES START HIKE FOR WASHINGTON, AND ALL IN BLOOMERS!

TRUMPETRESS ROSE SANDERSON.

The Suffragettes on their way to Washington, D. C., for the National Woman's Suffrage Convention.

NEW YORK, Feb. 12.—They're off! The Suffragettes, on their way to Washington, D. C., for the National Woman's Suffrage Convention.

The fact that petitioners had been ruled out by General Russell Gardner, who did not expect to find the last in the line of the suffragettes, was a disappointment to the women.

Most of the women were in bloomers, of silk or woolen material, and were carrying a small working skirt, though many of the ladies declared for the old skirt.

Boston Women Join Backfire Move on Suffrage Parade

An army of Massachusetts anti-suffragists will go to Washington to foil the suffrage parade which is to parade on March 2. The Boston "anti" will join with the women of other cities in a strategic move which they predict "will take some of the wind out of the sails of the suffrage ranks."

The plan for the first move on to Washington are being mapped out by officials of the Massachusetts Association Opposed to the Extension of Suffrage to Women.

The plan is to have the "anti" from at least sixteen States pour into Washington before the suffragette "platoon" reach that city. A big public meeting will be held in a Washington theater, and the anti-suffragists by their slanders which do not want women to have the right to vote.

Mrs. Allen, wife of Charles Allen, president of the New York "anti," is in Boston completing plans for the trip to Washington.

At the big meeting of the "anti" in Ford Hall, mention of the name of Mrs. Pauline, the British anti-suffragist, evoked an outburst of applause which was not down on the program. The hand-clapping and cheering started the "anti" for a few minutes.

ZBYSKO-LEMLE IN GREAT BOUT HERE TONIGHT

Zbyzsko, the mighty Pole, and Karl Lemle will clash in a finish wrestling match, last two falls out of three, at the circus building tonight. A record-breaking crowd of "fans" is sure to turn out in order to witness the struggle.

It will be a case of a scientific points in the full flush of power against a veteran who has been tried against the best wrestlers of the world and has made good. The fact that the winner will be in line for a match with Champion Frank Zerk leads interest to the battle.

Zbyzsko has had no chance with Zerk, while Lemle will be struggling for that honor, for he regards it as an honor to be able to work his way to the point where he becomes a champion opponent for the big boys here.

Lemle is in great shape and feels confident that he will be able to show the Pole. Whether he will be more successful than some who have tried before him and failed, remains to be seen. At any rate he feels that he will turn the trick and that after the battle Zbyzsko will be eliminated from the running as a championship contender.

Zbyzsko evidently looks Lemle in great respect, as he has declared that he would judge himself to be no factor against him. A man who is usually so particular about his men, and who has made good against the best, this shows that he is not over-confident of the outcome, although he does not admit that there is a chance of his being defeated.

But one definite reason is to be in the best of shape and not being out of hand tonight. Neither feels that the affair is going to be any plain job for either, and they have accepted accordingly.

The winner will have the landside fall. He accepts all the challenges ahead at him. Proudman, whom he has defeated, is the champion of the world, and he has been winning the view of the experts of the middle West.

Prior to the principal number there will be a field of men, in the first of which Joe Ferrell, the rock Boston welterweight, meets Jack Westergard of Buffalo, while in the second corner, Jimmy Burns, will have his opponent in August Fane, the German. Between the last of the three bouts there will be exhibitions of athletic prowess by members of "the Grays of Asia" company.

WILLIAMS AND CAMPI CLASH IN BIG BOUT RIVAL BANTAMWEIGHTS BATTLE IN VERNON RING TODAY

The Winner of Coast Bout Will Receive Diamond Belt from Tom McCarey and Chance to Meet Johnny Coulon

COAST BOY IS SLIGHT FAVORITE IN BETTING; WINNER TO MEET COULON.

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 12.—Eddie Campi of San Francisco and "Kid" Williams of Baltimore clash in a ten-round battle at Vernon today, and the winner of the contest will be in line for a bout with Johnny Coulon of Chicago for the bantamweight championship of the world. The contest has aroused a tremendous amount of interest here and is sure to be witnessed by a record-breaking crowd of "fans."

The bout is being promoted by the veteran Tom McCarey, and he will present the winner with a diamond belt. Campi has been made a favorite in betting circles, but the battlers had to be sure to give him a stirring battle from the moment that the gong sounds at the opening of the first round until the "go" comes in an end.

CALIFORNIANS ARE BACKING CAMPI.
This is one of a series of his bouts which have taken place here, but as none of his fights ever went over ten rounds, and very few of them over ten, he hasn't had his stamina impaired in any way by heavy exertion before his "come over set," as the popular expression has it.

In Line for Big Battle.
There is little question that the winner of this affair will be in direct line for a battle with Coulon for the title, for there are few remaining in the class now that one of this trio has stepped into the arena. Coulon, who would be the last in the world to dodge a meeting with this winner, whatever it is, but nobody but Williams and his manager is betting that Williams, not Coulon, will be the winner. Williams has never been much of a dogger, and his record shows that he is ready to battle the best of his class.

Williams and his manager are especially confident. Sam Harris, the business man of the party, backs the Dan. Williams was born in Copenhagen, Jan. 10, 1890, and therefore is only a kid in the boxing game, although he has had experience enough for more than three years, having started his career in 1908.

Take some of the boys in California, he is a kid. Williams is a native of San Francisco, his native town, in southern California. He was born in Copenhagen, Jan. 10, 1890, and therefore is only a kid in the boxing game, although he has had experience enough for more than three years, having started his career in 1908.

MCAREY TURNS DOWN OFFER TO BATTLE WELLS

By JACK CONWAY.
Tom McCarey, the Western cowboy who won the title, heavyweight championship by virtue of his victories over Al Kaufman, Jim Flynn and Al Palmer, has turned down a ring title. It is that of champion sidekicker.

Since McCarey vanquished Palmer, he has been besieged with offers to box from all parts of the world. He has been offered big purses for bouts with Jack Willard and Bombardier Wells. Willard would be a great drawing card with the conquest of Palmer, as he has already defeated the Western heavyweight in a ten-round battle in New York. Wells is the heavyweight champion of England, and of course, would be a big card with McCarey.

Later, however, absolutely refused to clash with Willard. He says the latter first got a reputation and that he might then consent to meet him. This statement by McCarey was ludicrous, as Willard is one of the top white heavyweights in the business.

MCAREY realized that this "stall" would not work with Wells. He therefore demanded a fabulous purse. He told Billy Gibbons, through his manager, Billy McCarey, that he could not afford to battle with the British title holder unless he was given 40 per cent. of the money taken in at the bout. Gibbons was willing to give McCarey 70 per cent., but could not give him any more, as he would also have to give Wells 30 per cent.

CONSIDERABLE interest is being displayed in the two big bouts which will take place on Washington's Birthday. Joe Rivers, the sensational Mexican brawler, is scheduled to meet "Knockout" Brown in a ten-round contest at Vernon. Al Volagast and Tommy Murphy are billed to clash in another ten-round "go" at Daily City, which is just outside of San Francisco.

Brown has yet to prove his worth over the twenty-round bout. Jimmy Morgan, his manager, has time and again refused to accept his promise to engage in a last fight.

The New York Dutchman is a strong, willing fighter, but he lacks brawn, and I think that Rivers will win. As for Volagast and Murphy, they are both good fighters, but I think that Volagast will win. The Dutchman is a better fighter than Baldwin.

THE Eddie Campi-Kid Williams bout at Vernon today has caused a great deal of excitement among the Coast "fans." Tom McCarey, of course, will give the winner a diamond belt, and has offered the affair as a prize for a world's bantamweight championship. Tom has been a pretty clever promoter when it came to advertising.

Boxing Results

At Tamaqua.—Battling Nelson knocked out Harry Dillon in the tenth round of a fast bout. Dillon was knocked down four times before he stayed down.
At Paris.—Adrien Dupont defeated Willie Lewis in a twenty-round bout. The Frenchman led in nearly every round.
At Philadelphia.—Harry Baker stopped Johnny Willets in the second round of a scheduled six-round bout.
At New York.—Jack Denning proved too clever for Johnny Ward in a ten-round bout at Brown's gymnasium.

POTIER PUT LID ON BOXING AT MARIEVILLE

PROVIDENCE, Feb. 12.—Governor Pothier prohibited the boxing exhibition which was held for the Marieville Athletic Club last night. He notified President Edgar B. Barlett, who is in charge of the exhibition, that the boxing must be stopped immediately.
After a consultation with the other members of the council President Pothier issued the Governor that his orders would be carried out and that the exhibition would not be held.
The Governor told President Barlett that the system of licensing fights in North Providence was illegal, that the Town Council had been issuing a license license good for a year for any number of fights that might be held during that time. This, of course, was strictly against the provisions of the law, which specifies that a license must not be granted for such exhibition.

Advice to the Heart Hungry

Dear Editor:—
I am a young man with bow legs and a pure heart. I think my girl loves me but I am so bashful that I always get in bad.

Last night I was so fussed when she sat in my lap that I let her fall through on the floor. She said if I couldn't hold my own better than that I could go home. Can you suggest anything that will help me bear up better?

Yours in bad,
E. Beaumont Billings

Taft's Three Weeks of Power Mean Three Weeks of Responsibility

There is revolution in Mexico more central and more menacing than before.

A coup d'état in the capital, as sudden and sweeping as that of Napoleon III. in France, spreads anarchy and chaos once more for a time through the provinces. There will follow the usual havoc with the lives and property of foreign citizens—including our own, because Americans, of all nations, through a laggard and chicken-hearted President, have made American threats of intervention a mockery and the power of the great Republic the laughing stock of the insurgents and regulars alike.

We who live upon the outside and read the censored news scarcely comprehend the savagery of the recurring wars in Mexico. The other day, on one of the ranches, twenty-two of the rebels were slain by the regulars, and in that Christian (?) chaos these men, left unburied, were literally eaten by the prowling coyotes of the region. A few days after, in another battle, fifty regulars and rebels were slain, and the unburied bodies of these men, in turn, left in the streets, were eaten by the hogs and coyotes and the birds of prey. One hundred or more of American citizens have already been slain.

Does any man think that Germany would have endured this outrage for a day? Does any man believe that English warships would not be already bombarding Vera Cruz for a similar outrage upon English citizens?

The man of straw in the White House, spineless and helpless, holds his hands and does nothing.

Taft whispers that he is unwilling to do anything until Wilson comes in. Taft is President yet for three weeks—charged with the responsibilities of the Republic—for the protection of the lives and properties of its people.

Are American citizens to be slain and American property to be pillaged unchallenged for yet three weeks, in order that the outgoing President may be polite to the incoming President? Is a state of revolution to leave our citizens and our investments to looting and outrage in order that William Howard Taft may preserve the amenities with Woodrow Wilson?

While power abides, responsibility abides. While Taft is President, Taft is answerable to the American people.

And Taft should dispatch now, with all possible speed, his orders to the armed forces of the American government to protect the American people, and to say in reality and deadly earnest that, whether Madero wins, or Diaz, the Mexican government must and shall protect the lives and property of American citizens.

Mr. Taft's term extends, not to the middle of February, but the 4th of March. If he is going to abdicate his duties, he ought to abdicate his office.

Wake Up, New England Business Men. You Will Be Everlastingly Disgraced if You Let That "Friendship Excursion" to South America Fall Through

The city of Boston is to send a Commercial Embassy into the heart of South America, where are mighty nations, enormously wealthy, whose trade and friendship would be tremendously profitable to New England.

Every great business concern in New England that is considering expansion into foreign trade should be represented upon this deputation.

If the South American visit of the Boston Chamber of Commerce should be abandoned at this time it would be a biting disgrace, a most invidious reflection upon the enterprise of New England, a confirmation of the meers of the pessimists who don't believe we have inherited the energy and vitality of our fathers.

It is necessary that at least fifty persons agree to participate in the Chamber of Commerce tour before February 25 or the whole plan must be shelved.

This newspaper is informed that while registration has been very encouraging, there is still doubt whether the entire fifty delegates can be secured.

New England is full of prosperous retired merchants who can easily afford to spend three months in missionary work for New England on the wonderful South American continent. There are many active merchants whose business would benefit more from 90 days expended in cultivating friendly relations with South America than from the same amount of time devoted to their own desks here in Boston or New England.

If the South American tour is anything like the European tour of two years ago it will be more like a triumphal procession than a modest progress. Extraordinary entertainment is already promised by ministers to South American countries.

South America is rich, but manufacturing there is in its infancy. New England is the closest of the world's manufacturing centres to this market. We have been very slow in going after business in South America. We must certainly not allow to miss this great opportunity.

Dancing—Our Earliest Emotional Expression

We Share It with Other Animals, and Some of Its Possibilities Are Just Being Developed

By GARRETT P. SERVISS.

ONE of the most remarkable additions to the attractions of the stage within a year or two has been the introduction of a new and beautiful form of dancing, which has surprised everybody by their power of dramatic expression.

Life on this globe would be a very dreary affair if its inhabitants were not able to express to one another their thoughts and feelings. First comes spoken language, then written and printed language, and, after these, movements of the body and limbs and of the facial muscles, which are frequent the most expressive of all.

But the art of telling thoughts and revealing emotions without speech is probably deteriorated since the earlier stages of human history. A study of mankind indicates that their first mode of expression was mainly a language of signs. Dancing was a form of visible language from the beginning. The dancer preceded the orator in stirring the emotions of the multitude.

Man shared this instinctive art with other animals. He got it from the same source. A company of emperor penguins gravely moving in unison, bowing to one another with stately courtesy and taking their steps with rhythmic regularity reveal the origin of dancing.

We cannot read the thoughts of the penguins, but we can see plainly that their performance has for them the same life of significance that the dances of savage men possess for those who take part in or look upon them. When you were younger you no doubt read in the book called "Swiss Family Robinson" the account of a beautiful wild bird's dance on a fallen log with a multitude of admiring bird spectators looking on. That account, although it appeared in a story of fiction, was true to nature. Many naturalists have beheld similar scenes. They prove that the passion for the stage is not confined to men and women. A visit to any hayward when the Spring sunshine calls out the fowls will show you a proud cock ruffling his bronze feathers and talking dancing steps before his admiring family. The great Darwin drew profound lessons from the behavior of dancing birds. There are even dancing mice.

In man the dancing instinct has the advantage of being guided and developed by a superior degree of intelligence. But its profound origin in the deepest impulses of his nature is always evident. I have seen a famous speaker who could not reach his highest efforts without executing what was virtually a dance upon the platform. His body, his hands and his feet got into motion coincidentally with his thoughts and emotions, and his audience did not laugh at him, but, on the contrary, was thrown into deeper sympathy with his words and comprehended them better because of the rhythmic movements by which they were accompanied and reinforced.

The first stage performers were dancers. In Shakespeare's time there were "Morris dancers" whose popularity was greater than that of these Morris dancers performed his steps on the road from London to Sheffield, to the great delight of the people. And today there is no stage act that can exceed the popularity of a good dance.

The new dancers who are now developing this ancient art in novel forms are unquestionably right in maintaining that it is a kind of expression which has not been sufficiently attended to. Its possibilities are infinite, without venturing into any objectionable forms. At bottom it is only a soundless music, for music is essentially measure, rhythm and harmony; and, moreover, music always accompanies dancing. Even the dancing birds flap their wings and strike them upon nearby objects in time with their movements.

Like all human acts that grow out of primal impulses of our nature, dancing is liable, at times, to degenerate, as witness recently such performances as the "turkey trot." But the old Puritan prejudice against dancing is fast disappearing, and its forms are improving every day.

We may never have again the "astronomical dances" of the Egyptians, which were intended to represent the movements of the heavenly bodies; the Bacchic dances of the Greeks; the dances of Pan, which was performed in the open air with wreaths of oak leaves and garlands of flowers; the May Day dances of Rome; the military dances which Minerva is said to have instituted in commemoration of the victory of the Olympian gods over the Titans; or the sacred dances of the Jews, like those in which King David will never be eliminated from human nature, and now that it is being more scientifically studied, something more beautiful than has yet been dreamed of in art may be developed.

Living in a World of Ideas

Ada Patterson Writes on the Good Accomplished by Cheerful Men and Women

By ADA PATTERSON.

What kind of a world do you live? By what ideas is it peopled?

We say of this person, "How charming she is," and of that, "What a disagreeable man." We mean, "In what a hopeful, happy world of ideas she lives," or "By what morose, selfish thoughts is he accompanied." Surrounding this earth is atmosphere, about five miles in extent. In that atmosphere we can live and breathe and work, perform the human functions of loving and mating, or hoping and developing and worshipping. But should an ambitious aeronaut pass beyond the atmosphere limit he would reach a stratum of rarefied air, in which he would soon die. This atmosphere is the world's envelope, inseparable, indispensable. Every person has his atmosphere, indispensable and inseparable. It is the world of ideas in which he has his existence.

One person attracts us, another repels. Unless we have the habit of analysis we are puzzled by the fact that two persons of apparently equal gifts and ambility should so differently affect us. We know that we would like to know one of them much better, and we would be glad if we never had to see the other. Yet there is no real mystery about it. The thought world in which one lives pleases us. The thought atmosphere of the other displeases.

Magnificence and personality are terms for which philosophers have gone seeking to profound depths and at dizzy heights, yet whatever the terms they have given to their more or less valuable theories, they bring us back to the starting point. What kind of thoughts do these persons think?

This woman radiates a pervasive cheerfulness, that man high hope and supreme courage. We say to them, "This half hour I have spent with you has done me good. It has made me better and brighter and braver. I don't know why." But we do know why. They have tinged our pale, anemic thoughts with the vivid colors of their own. Our weakness has borrowed from their strength. Our mental atmosphere has absorbed some of their own electric quality. "She is the most charming woman I ever knew," we hear enthusiastically spoken of someone who seems to us plain, insipid, commonplace, until we come within range of her personality. We may not even have a chance to talk with her. We may only catch the flash of her smile, or a glance of her eye. But by these we have had an entrance into the world of her ideas, and found it good.

In what world of ideas do you live? Is it filled with principles and truths, or crowded by personalities?

Is it a little world or a big world? Is it a world of few and good and clean, our thoughts may rove the earth and be as wide as the universe, though we live in a ball bedroom. We may live in a world of pigmies or of giants according to our will. What is the color of the world you live in? Is it black with gloom, or gray with passive acceptance of things as they are, but which you might make better, or is it rosy with the rays of studying hope? That color depends upon you.
